SIGNAL SOUNDED ON OPENING OF CANAL

FOR THE EXPLOITATION OF MISSISSIPPI'S GREAT NATURAL RESOURCES.

NO BETTER WAY TO PURPOSE

Mississippi's Centennial Exposition To Be Held at Gulfport—Automatically Becoming the Gateway to the Orient.

Mississippi's seaport city automatically becoming the gateway to the Orient by the opening of the Panama Canal, the completion of that gigantic project would seem just the proper signal for a worldwide exposition of this State's great natural resources. Far too long has one of the most lavishly endowed commonwealths in the universe been known as a lumber state to the exclusion of other more permanent advantages. Now it is full time for recognition along more extended lines.

The southern counties of Mississippi, if fully cultivated, might furnish the world with canned vegetables and fruits; the Delta's cotton output, if manufactured at home for export by way of the Canal, would give that fertile region a millionaire population such as would make Wall Street seem poor, by comparison; while the lime land section in the northern and eastern counties, teeming with the sweet melon, might feed a hungry continent on beef and packing house products. A growing sheep raising industry would add wool and suet to the commercial output.

This and much more of possibility is Mississippi's God-given wealth which needs only adequate capital and citizenship to develop.

A good business man advertises for what he needs, and the wise business heads who dominate affairs in Mississippi have chosen a mammoth Centennial Exposition as the advertisement best calculated to bring to this State recognition from the right people, who are needed here to help build up the empire State of the South and the great manufacturing emporium of South Sea trade. Here in one well chosen spot may the countless thousands be shown all fair Mississippi has to offer. Cotton of the finest texture in the world; fruits, vegetables and berries which command fancy prices on Northern and Eastern markets; poultry that has never been excelled anywhere; hogs that are worth almost their weight in gold; the best beef cattle in the world; strong young mules bred here in this State. Here also may they learn of the tremendous lumber industry and of the two thriving seaports through which Mississippi exports more lumber than any other State in the Union. Capital will be quick to see the enormous advantages lying open for manufacturing enterprises whereby all these products may be shaped for human use at home at a minimum cost of manufacture and sent out through the Mississippi ports by way of the Canal for barter in Oriental markets, thus putting an end to the present wasteful policy by which Mississippi is selling the raw product to outside manufacturers who reap all the profits of commercial industry. These outsiders are now sending out all over the world the finished goods which eventually get back down South and are bought by Mississippians for an exorbitant price of which the retailer, the jobber, the manufacturer and all their cohorts of agents each gets a fair slice.

Mississippi products for Mississippi and Mississippi for Mississippians will soon be the slogan sounded from "Yellow Rabbit to Vinegar Bend," with a warm welcome and a free share of statehood for every new settler who would enjoy the privilege of a part in the upbuilding of a sovereign State that is foreordained to be the leading commonwealth in the greatest nation of the universe. Such is the primary purpose of the Centennial Exposition.

No section of the State, that will be it ever so remote, can miss its share. The Nation, State, counties, and municipalities, are banding together in a supreme effort on this one hundredth anniversary of its movements, shafts and manumissions, contains more than 520,000 bodies. It has an area of 474 acres and about fifteen miles of walks.

RECOGNITION BY CONGRESS PROVES EXPOSITION'S WORTH

The prompt recognition given by our National Congress shows the importance to this whole country of the Mississippi Centennial Exposition. The National exhibit which was sent to California for the fair will be brought here at an expense to the United States Government of something like ninety thousand dollars.

This exhibit constitutes in itself a liberal education and is well worth crossing a continent to see. Its being sent here places the stamp of Federal appreciation on the big Mississippi project as well as providing a magnificent additional attraction.

NUMBERS POISON OWN SYSTEMS

AUTO-INTOXICANT IS FOUNDATION OF MOST DISEASES AND ILL HEALTH, SAYS NOTED AUTHORITY.

Advanced medical authorities assert that auto-intoxication is the foundation of most of the ills and diseases to which the human flesh is heir. "This condition," says L. T. Cooper, who has made an exhaustive study of the subject, "is nothing more or less than the slow self-poisoning of the vital organs, produced by the excessive mental and physical strain we are forced to endure, which renders the organs lame and inactive and permits toxins—actual poisons—to be generated within one's own body."

"Sometimes the trouble starts in the liver and kidneys, and sometimes it starts in the stomach, or elsewhere but in any case the blame lies with the faulty method of living, which has become so prevalent of recent years, and it is the more important organs that suffer the final damage. As when they falter or fail in their duties the body fills up with poisons and the victim readily yields to their baneful influences. Bright's disease, stomach and intestinal troubles, catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes; in fact, may be called auto-intoxication or self-poisoning."

"A tired dragging feeling of the body," continued Mr. Cooper, or "cluggish mind and dull memory, intense nervousness, headaches, or stomach and bowel troubles, poor circulation, imperfect digestion, constipation and despondency, are common symptoms of auto-intoxication, and nine out of every ten people in the average city like Atlanta are likely to be so affected."

Tanlac, the powerful reconstructive tonic, was designed especially to overcome these troubles, and it is Mr. Cooper's theory that the Tanlac treatment is the direct remedy therefor. There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the healthful work of this celebrated preparation, which begins its action by stimulating the digestive and assimilative organs, thereby enriching the blood and invigorating the entire system. Next, it enables the stomach to thoroughly digest the food, thereby permitting the assimilable products to be converted into blood, bone and muscle. It overcomes that great exciting cause of disease—weakness. It renders the body vigorous and elastic, keeps the mind clear and energetic, and throws off the symptoms of nervousness and indigestion. It builds up the constitution, weakened by disease and mental and physical overwork, quickens convalescence and is an unfailing source of comfort to those suffering from these troubles.

Tanlac is sold exclusively in Columbus at S. B. Street and Son's Drug Store; Caledonia, Andrew's Drug Store and by the Mayfield Drug Company at Artesia.
